The Great Pyramids of Giza are one of the most iconic landmarks in the world. They were built by the pharaohs of the Fourth Dynasty as tombs for themselves and their families.

The Valley of the Kings is a necropolis on the west bank of the Nile River. It contains the tombs of many of the pharaohs of the New Kingdom, including Tutankhamun.

The Temple of Karnak is a vast complex of temples and chapels on the east bank of the Nile River. It was dedicated to the god Amun-Re and was the largest religious structure in ancient Egypt.

The Rosetta Stone is a fragment of a stele inscribed with a decree issued by Ptolemy V Epiphanes in 196 BC. It is important because it contains the same text written in three different scripts: hieroglyphics, demotic, and Greek.

This vintage photograph shows a group of ancient Egyptian women grinding grain. This was a common task for women in ancient Egypt, and it was essential for providing food for the family.
